MERA25 announces the support of Klimaliste Deutschland for the Bremen parliamentary elections: Here the radical, progressive and green political force for Bremen is forming

Bremen, 27 March 2023

Now it's official: Klimaliste has announced its support for MERA25 in the upcoming elections in Bremen. Bit by bit MERA25 is gaining the support it needs to succeed in the election campaign, which officially started on 18 and 19 March with the slogan "For the new Bremen Solidarity" (Learn more).

"The support of the new Bremen Solidarity by Klimaliste Deutschland makes us very happy, because climate protection and social justice are inseparable. We are fighting for a radical and just climate policy in Bremen", commented the spokesperson of MERA25 Bremen, Jan Genin.

Like the Klimaliste, MERA25 is committed to the new climate solidarity, because Bremen is located on the coast and only has a future if it consistently implements climate protection. MERA25's political priorities for Bremen also include putting the crucial infrastructure in the hands of the citizens, socialising the energy supply and introducing a public job guarantee so that citizens can immediately begin to shape the necessary change themselves.

Climate solidarity also means an end to the debt dogma. In order to achieve climate goals and solidarity, public spending must be massively increased. MERA25 aims to make this possible by relying on a modern monetary policy. States do not have to earn money in order to spend it. On the contrary: states create the money they spend themselves. Bremen's debt brake prevents important investments and further exacerbates inequality. The most important step towards a modern monetary policy is therefore the abolition of the debt brake through a referendum.

The spokesperson of MERA25 Bremen, Jan Genin, is available for interviews.
